

Patrick Brunett

President – TG Renewable Energy Technologies

Patrick has over 25 years of international sales, marketing, and business development experience, with the last 15 years in the automotive market. As President of TG Renewable Energy Technologies, LLC, he is responsible for strategic planning and execution, business development and sales, and all operational functions.

In addition to being a member of the executive team that launched Sirius Satellite Radio, Patrick has held senior management positions at Intelligent Mechatronics Systems, Sumitomo, and Sony Electronics. Patrick has also worked as an independent consultant, assisting start-up and established companies conduct technology and market analysis, create strategic business plans and launch new products and technologies.

Patrick has a Bachelor of Arts from Michigan State University and lives in SE Michigan with his wife and three children. He enjoys running, reading, travel, spending time with his kids and working around the house.